FLORA HILL, VICTORIA

LEWIS FREEMAN-HARRISON LOOKING FORWARD TO ELECTION DAY

Eppalock Ward candidate, Lewis Freeman-Harrison, is feeling confident and excited as council elections draw closer.

“I have faith in the people of my ward to elect representatives who will fulfil their duties in a time of crisis such as this. From the beginning of my campaign, I have stated that I am standing for council based on the principles of equality, fairness, support of small business and as a voice on behalf of young citizens, and this is exactly what I intend to do.”

Mr. Freeman-Harrison echoed his ambition to support the hospitality industry and small business to help our local economy recover.

“I endorse the recent movement by council to close half of Bull Street to allow hospitality businesses to expand their outdoor dining since the restrictions have made it difficult for businesses such as this to stay afloat. I have personally spoken to dozens of small business owners in the last few weeks and they are in dire need of our help or they risk closing their doors before the end of this pandemic.”

Mr. Freeman-Harrison also reiterated his focus on how mental health is important because COVID-19 has had an extraordinarily detrimental impact on people’s health and wellbeing.

“This week, it was reported that Victoria has seen an increase in mental illness by 30% in the month of October alone. Many believe this is a federal or state government issue, however, in order to do what is right and in the best interest of the people of Bendigo, I believe we need to start taking responsibility on a council level.
